

Ring-Tailed Lemurs

By Alfie And James

Contents

3 Is what they do

4 were they live

5 how they fight each other

6 Index

If you were to check in one morning on a group of ring-tailed lemurs, you'd likely see them sitting on the ground facing the sun with their arms outspread. Sun worshipping? Sort of. Ring-tailed lemurs love sunbathing in a group, since they're social animals.

lemurs live in the wild only on the Africa Island of Madagascar and a few neighboring Islands.

Where ring-Tailed lemurs live

They are in a part of Africa and here is a map of the part were they live.

ARKIVE
www.arkive.org

In a troop, or group, of ring-tailed lemurs, which typically numbers between 15 and 20 individuals, females rule. If a squabble breaks out between a male and a female, the female lemur always wins the argument.

Index

2 contents page

3 what they do

4 hair is a map of where they live

5 how they fight each other